

In Latin we explore the language & civilisation of the Ancient Rome. We explore a range of vocabulary & language structures which allows us to enter into the complex world of the Ancient Roman people. The study of an ancient civilisation allows us to better understand our own society, making us more perceptive & better citizens of the world we live in today. We consider issues such as humanity, war, death, the roles of men & women, education, healthcare, politics, travel & literature. Latin is a logical & highly organised language, it improves our memories, develops critical thinking, extends our vocabulary, and makes us more effective communicators in any language.
